Metecom acquires Kutepa Group – Finnish tank and silo specialist continues its growth under new ownership

Metecom Oy has acquired the entire share capital of Kuortaneen Teollisuuspalvelu Oy, and Kutepa Group, together with its subsidiaries, transfers to new owners. The transaction was completed on 30 September 2026. Metecom is owned by MVE Capital Oy and The Brawe Capital Oy. Founder Juha Kattelus and Markku Takala will continue in their current roles at Kutepa.

A SITE bulk transport unit at the Kuortane plant. SITE is Kutepa's own brand of tanker and transport equipment superstructures.

Founded in 1994, Kutepa Group is one of Finland's largest suppliers of industrial tanks and silos. The group designs, manufactures and installs tanks, silos, conveyors and material handling systems for the process, mining, energy, forest and food industries in Finland and across the Nordics. Under the SITE brand, Kutepa manufactures superstructures for bulk, fuel and chemical transport equipment, while Kutepa Rubber Service specialises in wear and corrosion protection and the retreading of heavy machinery tyres. The group employs approximately 90 people, with its headquarters and production in Kuortane, Finland.

Kutepa's operations continue as before: the company name, the SITE brand, personnel, locations and customer agreements remain unchanged, and founder Juha Kattelus and Markku Takala continue in their current roles.

"Kutepa is a rare company: more than 30 years of history, market-leading expertise in industrial tanks and silos, and people who are genuinely proud of their work. Juha and Markku have built an excellent foundation, and we want to continue their work with respect for it. We see significant growth potential for Kutepa both in Nordic process industries and in new sectors such as the energy transition and data centres, and we are ready to invest to realise it."

— Matias Ventovuori, Metecom Oy

The new owners are committed to supporting Kutepa's growth over the long term. The aim is to strengthen the company's position as a partner to Nordic industrial customers, expand deliveries to growing sectors, and invest in production, capabilities and people. Kutepa is Metecom's first company and will serve as a platform around which the owners build a broader metal industry group through complementary acquisitions.

"Markku and I have built Kutepa for more than three decades. It was important for us to find an owner who values our people and customer relationships and who has both the will and the ability to take the company forward. I believe Kutepa is in good hands, and I am glad to continue building the next chapter of the company."
